

The Solar Constant is a measure of the flux density of solar radiation received at the top of the Earth's atmosphere.